Welcome

to the final One Trust newsletter of 2022/23.

I have written to all staff separately at the end of what has been a busy term. Therefore, some of what I might normally include in a message like this, is shared in my letter.

Communication is so important, anywhere, but particularly in larger organisations. Equally important is a sense of belonging, in this case, being part of a larger family of schools.

It's important that you feel you have a voice beyond your school. It's important you feel heard. We have much more to do before we get this right. I want you to contribute to this, to help us understand what more we can do.

The focus groups that contributed to our recent staff survey were invaluable. We want to do more of this and I hope there will be an opportunity for you to get involved, next academic year.

I came across a quote recently which, I am sure you will recognise, resonates with our values:

'Every child deserves a champion: an adult who will never give up on them, who understands the power of connection and insists they become the best they can possibly be'. (Rita Pierson).

ATLP is full of champions. Adults who want the very best for our children and, daily, go above and beyond in trying to make that possible. Sometimes it's not easy. Sometimes the child or young person might make it difficult, but your dedication and resilience in doing what is in their best interests is the constant.

I am humbled to be surrounded by all of you with the knowledge that, with you in our schools, we are stronger together and we can put children at the heart of everything we do.

The great Ken Robinson rightly pointed out that those who work in our schools often don't do the job that it might say on their job description. Whatever role you do in our schools, I agree with Ken. You are also 'mentors, coaches, motivators and lifelong sources of inspiration to students'.

This issue of One Trust celebrates just a fraction of the fantastic achievements of children and staff across our schools this academic year. Enjoy reading and have a wonderful summer break.

Best wishes,

Richard Gill CBE - CEO
The Arthur Terry
Learning Partnership

A golden occasion as Children's University stars graduate

Endless hours of hard work and commitment was rewarded in front of proud family and friends when the Arthur Terry Learning Partnership's Children's University (CU) Gold Graduation took place at the University of Birmingham.

The ceremony, held in the Great Hall in front of a packed audience, provided the opportunity to reward 234 pupils who had racked up between 100 hours and, in one case, an incredible 700 hours of CU activities both inside and outside the classroom.

Inspired by mascot Owl-Bert, pupils have successfully completed sport, art, drama, entertainment, environmental and countless other projects to earn stamps for their CU digital passports on the way to earning bronze (30 hours), silver (65 hours) and gold (100 hours) awards.

Partnership CEO Richard Gill CBE said: "Children's University has given fantastic opportunities to our pupils. The activities involved really do support the mental health of our young people and the amount of hours they have racked up completing their projects is truly phenomenal."

More than 100 external community clubs – including Boldmere Swimming Club, local Scouts groups and Veseyans Rugby Club – are signed up and supporting our young people in gaining CU hours.

Across the Partnership, a mightily impressive 8,000 pupils are registered to the project and have 'logged' a combined 74,294 hours across 937 enrichment activities in our schools.

Helen O'Donnell, CEO of Children's University Trust, was delighted to speak in front of the children and said: "This graduation is a bright new beginning and opportunity to keep learning and growing."

"I would encourage all of you to think of what is next for you and what more you can do. Always think of what you can achieve next!"

The Coleshill School's Head Girl Laura Fahy, Year 13, also took to the stage to speak of the inspiration she gained from Children's University.

Laura added: "I graduated seven years ago and I'm now preparing to study radiography at university in September. Children's University helped me so much in my journey in so many ways.

"It enabled me to take part in school productions, Duke of Edinburgh Award, STEM club, trips abroad and perform at the German Market, among lots of other things. Academics are important, but school is about so much more than that."

The gold graduates celebrate outside the Great Hall.

Student Awards recognise remarkable youngsters

More than 100 inspirational students from schools across the Partnership were honoured for their outstanding achievements at an uplifting awards ceremony at Drayton Manor Park.

All the children and young people were nominated by their schools and received trophies and certificates in recognition of their outstanding contribution to school and community life.

As an extra treat, the award-winning students and their families also got to enjoy the rides at Drayton Manor.

Now a long-running tradition at ATLP, the annual awards have proven so successful that they have been split into two different sessions across the day - each introduced by CEO Richard Gill CBE, who praised the collective achievements of the students.

He said: "It was fantastic to get everyone together to celebrate these awards, which each year shine a light on the amazing students we have in our growing ATLP family.

"Just to put it into perspective, we have around 10,000 students at our schools and there were 116 students who picked up awards. So, every one of them should be immensely proud to have been put forward by their teachers. They really have shown themselves to be special and we are very, very proud of them."

The awards were also skilfully compered by ATLP children - first by Temmy and Silver from Osborne Primary School in Erdington and then by Harrison and Eliza of St Michael's Primary School in Lichfield.

They introduced the six award categories of special endeavour, community, extra-curricular, contribution to school life, charity fundraiser and creativity.

Comperes Eliza and Harrison.

Extra-Curricular victors.

Central Team Updates

ESTATES

The catering department has transitioned 74 members of catering staff across from Chartwells and is in the process of rolling out a lunchtime meals pre-order system for parents and carers.

The catering team has also moved its records online to reduce paper use and carbon footprint and passed six environmental health officer inspections with five stars since catering came in-house.

A three-year health and safety plan has been mapped out and the health and safety policy has been reviewed and updated. Other highlights include the newly-created accident recording system which is ready for implementation in September and a training matrix which is also set for introduction.

Across all schools, the IT team have overseen the centralisation of the InVentry entry system and ensured all are connected to the ATLP domain and under one Office 365 instance.

Contracts and Procurement work includes the mobilisation of the Partnership's outsourced cleaning contract and all schools becoming contract-aligned for FFT Aspire with a 25 per cent discount.

The brand-new Estates team is settling in well, with all 'North' region staff having been turned over within the last year.

Three-year strategic Estates plans have been created, new condition surveys undertaken and energy audits were carried out in the spring.

DATA

The central data team have been on a huge drive to make new data dashboards available to schools.

The brief was to make these dashboards dynamic, automatically updated with new data and allow our school leaders to proactively analyse their data to support school improvement.

Data Manager Wayne Perry said: "After a year of developing, testing and refining, as well as copious amounts of coffee, school and Partnership leaders now have access to dashboards that allow them to analyse their attendance, exclusions and assessment data against Partnership and national benchmarks.

“What’s more, they are stored in the cloud and accessible via a web browser, meaning they can be accessed from any device, anywhere. This is vitally important as we move towards all staff using iPads.”

FINANCE

The past 12 months have brought many significant changes for the finance team as systems were reviewed and consolidated from 21 databases, bank accounts and payrolls to a single system for all areas.

Head of Finance Ria Farrell explained: "This has created efficiencies within the team, greater controls and has allowed for easier consolidation of data. The Trust also adopted the Education and Skills Funding Agency (ESFA) Chart of Accounts to coincide with the new system, which should allow us to report more efficiently and accurately to ESFA, particularly regarding the Budget Forecast Return and Average Annual Return.

"At the end of the 2021/22 academic year, the finance team had a very successful external audit, which found finance to have robust controls and procedures in place. The outcome identified one low risk management point, reflecting the efforts of the team in maintaining effective controls and risk management."

Teaching School Hub is raising the standard

You may have heard about the Arthur Terry Teaching School Hub (TSH), but what does it actually do?

Charlotte Hotchin, TSH Administrator for the North Birmingham Schools TSH, told One Trust: "We are your one-stop-shop for everything National Professional Qualification (NPQ), Early Career Framework (ECF), Appropriate Body (AB), Initial Teacher Training (ITT) and other CPD!

"We currently have 318 delegates taking part in an NPQ, with eight cohorts having already sat their assessment with an above average 97 per cent pass rate."

In the next academic year, the following NPQs will be available:

- Leadership (18 months)
- NPQ for Headship
- NPQ for Senior Leadership
- NPQ for Early Years Leadership Specialist (12 months)
- NPQ for Leading Teaching
- NPQ for Leading Teacher Development
- NPQ for Leading Literacy
- NPQ for Leading Behaviour and Culture

Interested in an NPQ?

Charlotte added: "Ninety-six per cent of our delegates are satisfied or very satisfied with our programmes. Delegates have said face-to-face clinics are very useful in bouncing ideas off each other, networking ideas and addressing misconceptions, whilst the relaxed and informative structure of the day has also been praised.

"If you have any ECTs joining you in September, we offer the Full Induction Programme for the ECF, along with Appropriate Body services (remember, your ECTs must be signed up with an AB).

"We are currently working with 401 ECTs and 311 mentors for the ECF and we are expecting our numbers to rise again significantly next year. The registration process for the ECF has changed. To find out more and to register your interest, follow this link.

"We are also looking forward to welcoming 60 (so far) new SCITT trainees in September, who will be joining us for their teacher training year across a variety of subjects. From 2024, our SCITT will be growing and we will also be working with Worcestershire-based Prince Henry's TSH, who will be delivering a satellite version of our SCITT programme."

Learning Futures reaches Europe and BBC

The Partnership's Digital Transformation Lead Richard Anderton shared the stunning progress of our Learning Futures initiative when he featured in a high-profile education leaders discussion panel in Europe.

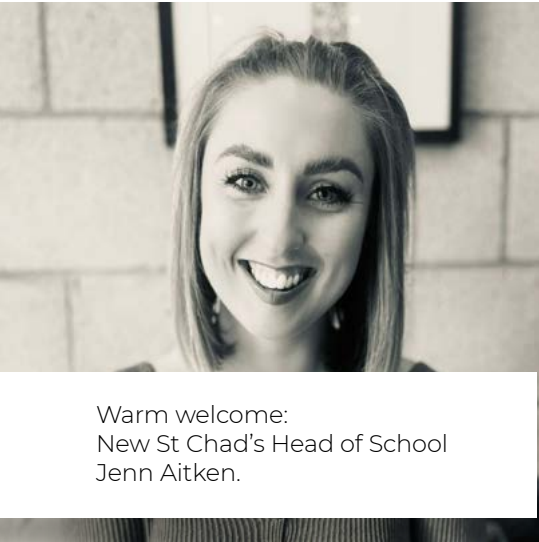

Richard was part of the Apple Education Talks event in Germany, where he explained how all of our decisions are underpinned by the belief children are at the heart of everything we do – ensuring our values drive our digital transformation.

Richard discussed how the Learning Futures concept is based upon pedagogy, curriculum and technology.

New St Chad's Head excited by fresh challenge

Warm welcome:
New St Chad's Head of School
Jenn Aitken.

Incoming St Chad's CE Primary Head of School Jenn Aitken is relishing the next stage of her career as she takes the helm at the Lichfield school.

Jenn, who has recently been working two days a week to support transition into her new role, has spent the last eight years working at a Church of England school in Stafford, where she is currently finishing her final term as Assistant Head.

Jenn said: "It's been an emotional time indeed! Firstly, it is a pleasure to join the ATLP team and I'd like to thank everybody who has already made me feel so welcome.

"English has always been my main background and passion and I have previously worked as an independent English consultant across the West Midlands, working in a variety of primary and secondary settings.

"Work aside, I am a mum, keen writer and a big foodie! I balance the busy nature of school life by enjoying live music, cooking and basically living at Trentham Gardens in Stoke!"

"I am excited to join a family of dedicated experts and professionals who put children at the heart of all that we do and I look forward to beginning a new journey in my career at St Chad's."

Jenn joins the ATLP family as outgoing St Chad's Headteacher Julie Smith leaves to continue her ordination training.

Much to celebrate at Nether Stowe

Nether Stowe School

Nether Stowe has enjoyed an exceptionally busy and very productive year in which the school has continued to embrace the development of Learning Futures.

Headteacher Glyn Langston-Jones said: "We are thrilled by the daily positive impact this digital transformation is having on our students and their learning.

"As always, it has been fantastic to celebrate sporting success across all year groups at both regional, county and national level and we have a spectacular school show at the end of term.

"We are also very excited by the relaunch and rebranding of the school college (house) system and the induction of the college competitions which, in conjunction with Children's University and Duke of Edinburgh, provides our children with a fantastic offer for their personal development.

"These developments go hand-in-hand with our revised ethos and values of be respectful, be ambitious and be resilient, which will shape our school community over the coming months and years."

There have been lots of highlights at Nether Stowe.

School improvement hits new heights

Curdworth Head of School Jas Kang says the whole school community has embraced the fresh perspectives and teaching pedagogy that have resulted from new appointments and restructuring.

She said: "There have been many staffing developments including two ECTs - Neve McNerlin in EYFS and Kelly Masters in Year 5/6 - top and tailing the school year groups.

"Strategic and innovative changes in staffing structure enabled split year group teaching across the school for the teaching of reading and mathematics - a change that has improved pupil outcomes and enabled staff to enhance their own teaching practise in these subjects.

"The mid-year appointment of Assistant Headteacher Kaye Gibbs has driven school improvement to another level by strengthening phonics teaching pedagogy, whole school curriculum design and continuous professional development.

"Such strengths were identified in the school's Ofsted report released in February 2023, which celebrates the school vision - Small School Big Opportunities."

Curdworth Primary pupils are all smiles.

Getting into the swing of things

Lucky Coleshill School sixth-formers enjoyed an in-depth look at what makes a major sporting competition a success when they were guests of honour at the British Masters at The Belfry.

As part of the careers experience arranged by North Warwickshire & Bedworth MP Craig Tracey, students were given a tour around the media, hospitality and professional facilities to highlight the organisation that goes into running such a high-profile event.

Lift-off for exciting Coleshill project

Coleshill School's Linden Lucas and Bella May have been enjoying an out of this world experience in the shape of an International Space Station (ISS) project.

Last autumn the Year 9 pupils successfully applied for the opportunity to have the use of an infrared camera on board the ISS to carry out a project exploring plant life. Healthy plants reflect more infrared light than unhealthy ones and thus space photography can allow rapid assessment over a wide area of the vigour of plant life.

Head of School Rebecca Brindley explained: "Having secured the use of the camera, the students had to write computer code to capture photos and record data whilst working within the strict parameters that were set for their project.

"Their code was submitted a few months ago and subsequently approved for flight. In May, it was sent up to the ISS and run on it. Having very recently received their results, they are now analysing them to see what conclusions they can draw which they will submit in a follow-up report."

Pupils revelling in use of iPad

Coton Green Headteacher Richard Osborne has lavished praise on the great technological advances which have allowed the Tamworth school to thrive this academic year.

Richard said: "We have been astounded at the impact Learning Futures has had on teaching and learning in our school. It has enabled equitable access for all children to access apps to practice the core skills of English and maths at home and in school.

"For teachers, it has transformed teaching and learning - enabling planning and resources to be shared within and across classes and extended ways in which pupils can record their learning and progress.

"We are at the start of our journey but we are so pleased with the progress made so far, which was recently recognised with a Q&A visit and learning walk by Simon Smith and Richard Anderton which stated all pupils were positive about their iPads and enjoy using them at school and home on a daily basis."

Elsewhere, Coton Green is saying a fond farewell to some long-standing and much-loved colleagues.

Richard added: "Good luck to Deputy Headteacher Elizabeth Pursehouse, Year 3/4 teacher Darren Birch and lunchtime supervisor and playworker Sue Lloyd as they move on to pastures new. You will always be part of our learning family!"

It's all smiles at Hill West

The summer term has been both action-packed and fun-filled at Hill West, where there has been much to celebrate.

The Investors in People assessment recognised 'there is a positive culture of continuous improvement, innovation and creativity', whilst children were also congratulated on their scientific knowledge and skills of enquiry through the Primary Science Quality Mark award.

Proud Headteacher Dr Beth Clarke said: "Our participation in competitive school games was also a highlight with us being awarded 'School Games Gold' for this academic year.

"Meanwhile, the plans to build our new school have moved on at pace, following a successful parent and wider community consultation held at the beginning of July.

"However, it is not the accolades, nor the prospect of a brand-new net-zero, sustainable school that make Hill West a special place to learn and play; rather it is the emphasis we place on ensuring our children are loved, cared for and supported to belong and succeed through our purposeful consideration of deep, trusting relationships with all adults."

Finding joy and creating agency at John Willmott

John Willmott School's vision is that every student will leave with their potential being their reality and Headteacher Nicola Gould could not be prouder of the progress being made.

Nicola explained: "Our school is built on eight moral virtues which are central to forging our young people to have the skills and knowledge to achieve academically and thrive personally.

"Throughout this year, we have offered students a myriad of co-curricular opportunities; careers events, inter-form competitions and sporting fixtures have proliferated. We have recognised the power of different cultures in December, celebrated British Science Week and deepened our work on equalities in LGBTQ+ Day.

"And yet, despite all of these opportunities, my attention has been caught by their nascent character. Our students are passionate about leading positive change in the community.

"For the King's Coronation we have seen participation in the 'Big Help Out', students have raised money in support of the Year 11 prom, co-designed the new school garden and represented the school at the Walmley and Sutton Town remembrance services."

Nicola is thrilled that staff and students are together creating a sense of agency for young people to be part of their communities, at school and beyond. A major highlight of the year was April's victory in the prestigious Sutton Coldfield Schools Debating Competition for the first time in its 20-year history.

Alexander proudly shows off his award.

National acclaim for 'wonderful' Mere Green pupil

There was national recognition for 'wonderful' Mere Green pupil Alexander-George Rusu who received a prestigious award for academic excellence at Edinburgh's Scottish Parliament.

The six-year-old was among 37 winners to attend the UK's biggest 'Inspire Awards' for children which celebrate the outstanding achievements of five to 17-year-olds.

The popular Year 1 pupil has been recognised as a 'Rising Superstar' and won his accolade in the 'Academics' category.

School of Rock was a big hit.

Arthur Terry

Rockin' the house

Arthur Terry's production of School of Rock was a huge success when, after nearly four years without a school show, it returned bigger and better than ever before!

Students presented five shows over the course of a week to often sold-out audiences of 200-plus people. The drama department was thrilled to have 150 students from years 7 to 13 involved in all aspects of the show including acting, live band, hair, make-up, stage designers, front of house, stage, sound and lighting as six months of preparation was rewarded.

The students presented an astonishingly professional show and news even reached current West End actor David Fynn, who plays the lead character of Dewey Finn in School of Rock. David sent a video message of congratulations and good luck to all cast and crew.

School staff are very proud of the achievement and look forward to seeing students' performing arts careers flourish both within and outside school.

WCA students wowed by new-build

West Coventry Academy students will move into the school's £38.4m new-build in September and ahead of that they enjoyed a sneak peek at the new facilities.

All students have toured the new buildings and were hugely impressed.

The new-build will be net-zero carbon in operation and also features a state-of-the-art sports hall and swimming pool, which will be open for community use.

Staff and students were also thrilled to welcome BBC Coventry & Warwickshire Radio into the school for a week as part of the station's 'Star School' feature.

Headteacher Ana Neofitou and children were interviewed on air and expressed their excitement at moving into the new facilities, as well as looking back at fond memories on the current site.

Many listeners were amazed to discover that Take That visited WCA in 1991 as part of their schools tour and Boyzone also stopped by in 1996 as part of a feature with The Big Breakfast!

BBC CWR will be back at WCA in September to report on the opening of the new site.

Rebecca, Emily and Ethan were live on BBC CWR.

Meet Anna Seward's teaching team

The Anna Seward Primary School teaching team is now complete ahead of the school's opening in September!

Joining Alfie Eke, who was appointed as EYFS Lead and reception teacher in February, are reception teaching assistant Stephanie Liddle, nursery teacher Willow Hawkins and nursery teaching assistant Amy Harris.

Leeann Fitzpatrick from William MacGregor joins as office manager for two days per week and an administration assistant is currently being recruited.

Head of School Richard Storer said: "I am delighted by the exceptional team we have recruited and we are all hugely excited to start teaching the very first Anna Seward pupils."

The 'Say Yes to the Dress' and 'Get Suited and Booted' initiative was a huge success at Stockland Green.

Much to celebrate at Stockland Green

It has been a school year to savour at Stockland Green where it began with a renewed focus on PRIDE values and by welcoming a new cohort of Year 7 pupils into the family with a successful residential trip to Whitemoor Lakes in Lichfield.

Headteacher Rebecca Goode said: "We were soon marking Christmas with one of the biggest celebration assemblies for some years. Alongside this, we were able to invite families to embrace children's successes with our Celebration Evening. The inaugural event was so well attended that it became standing room only!

"In February, Ofsted acknowledged the hard work of all stakeholders with a judgement of 'good' and shortly thereafter we celebrated one of our greatest strengths – diversity - with a Culture Day when we shared food, facts and fun as well as enjoying a Cultural Catwalk.

"The summer term featured a range of trips including Belgium, The Big Bang and College Days, as well as bidding a fond farewell to Year 11s at their prom, suitably attired after our 'Say Yes to the Dress'/'Get Suited and Booted' campaign.

Brookvale clocks up half a century!

More than 450 guests partied in the sunshine as they celebrated Brookvale Primary School's 50th birthday.

Children enjoyed rides on vintage fairground attractions, petted adorable animals and savoured delicious food as they mingled with teachers and members of the community.

The event had been months in the planning at the Erdington primary and followed a magical concert a week earlier.

At the party, children and guests enjoyed rides on a beautiful hand-cranked carousel dating back to 1901, a set of Victorian seaside swing boats and a mini 1950s waltzer - or futuristic 'UFO' bumper cars.

An animal petting zoo also visited, allowing youngsters to meet rabbits, goats and alpacas.

Fundraising by the school's dedicated PTFAs across the year enabled all the catering, including ice creams, drinks, crisps and cake, while the ATLP arranged for hot dogs to be served too.

Residents of nearby Orchard and Waterford Court retirement homes were special guests and even donated £100 to the school.

Headteacher Stuart Day said: "We knew we wanted the 50th birthday to be a special moment in the history of the school, so started work planning this at the beginning of the academic year.

"It was important this event was not like any others we had had in the past; it needed to be an event that highlighted the 50 years that the school has been at the heart of the community, how the school has changed through time and most importantly who we are as a community now."

Duo named as Careers Champions

John Willmott and Arthur Terry were recognised for their outstanding careers provision when they received Birmingham Careers Champion School status.

The honours were handed out during a wonderful celebration event hosted by Birmingham Careers Hub at Edgbaston Stadium.

Natalie Jones - Head of School at William MacGregor

William MacGregor
Primary School

As she reaches the end of her first year as William MacGregor's Head of School, Natalie Jones can look back with fondness and pride at what has been a time to savour – for both the Tamworth school and herself.

Natalie said: "We are continuing to strive for excellence in everything that we do and our new leadership team is enthused, passionate and driven to continue this journey.

"The successful Ofsted visit this year is something I am very proud of my team for. The children are what make our school unique and the community we serve is special and deserves the very best.

"Since joining the Partnership in 2018, William MacGregor has gone from strength to strength. Our children and staff have opportunities that they may not have had prior to this. William MacGregor truly is a special place to be and our children are very lucky to have their own school team and wider ATLP team championing everything they do."

Natalie, who was born and bred in Tamworth and still lives there 41 years later, has a wealth of teaching experience and learning to call upon. The former St Francis of Assisi College (Aldridge) student completed a school-based work experience and knew straight away that she wanted to become a primary teacher.

Natalie added: "I began at Liverpool Hope University in 2000 and completed a Bachelor of Education with English, gaining a 2:1. I spent four years in Liverpool and very nearly left Tamworth to begin my teaching journey there but Tamworth was home."

Natalie completed her NQT year at St Elizabeth's Catholic Primary school in Tamworth - where her daughter now attends and where she is also a parent governor.

"Until gaining my deputy head role in 2013 at William MacGregor, I was firmly embedded in Catholic diocesan education. On leaving St Elizabeth's in 2009, I went to work as a class teacher with a TLR for English at Christ The King Catholic Primary School in Kingstanding and spent five many happy years there," she said.

Natalie is keen to thank those closest to her who have helped on her journey.

She explained: "I've been married for 13 years and together with my husband Steve for just short of 20. In my early days of teaching, he used to drive me to school as I failed miserably trying to pass my driving test!

"He's a long-suffering teacher husband but has been instrumental in my teaching and leadership journey.

"We have two small children (Lily, six, and Evan, three) who really do now drive me to ensure we are doing the very best for all children. I always ensure staff understand that each one of their children in class is somebody's everything who deserves the very best and nothing less is good enough.

"This can be a challenging job that often takes me away from my family, but I want the same from their headteacher. My children are my 'why' and spending quality time with them and my family and friends is precious."

Natalie was determined to wait for the right fit before committing to her first senior leadership role and knew William MacGregor was the place for her when the time arrived.

"As soon as I set foot inside William MacGregor I was blown away by the ethos and culture that shone through as I was shown around," she added.

"I completed nine happy years here as deputy head under a very inspiring headteacher and am now very proud to have been promoted to head of school."
